Communication (COM)

COM 110 Public Speaking (3 credit hours)
Research skills, topic selection, speech organization, skills in speech delivery. Listening for analysis and evaluation of in-class speech presentation.

GEP Visual and Performing Arts
Typically offered in Fall, Spring, and Summer

COM 112 Interpersonal Communication (3 credit hours)
Interpersonal communication competence: self-concept, language and culture, self-disclosure, active listening, verbal and nonverbal communication, and conflict management.

GEP Social Sciences
Typically offered in Fall, Spring, and Summer

COM 200 Communication Media in a Changing World (3 credit hours)
Traces ongoing evolution of communication media. Examines the place and influence of the major media companies that control access to and the content of the contemporary mediascape. Challenges students to examine their use of media from cellphone, to computer, to music and gaming platforms. Restricted to non-Communication majors.

R: Non-COM majors only
GEP Humanities
Typically offered in Fall, Spring, and Summer

COM 201 Introduction to Persuasion Theory (3 credit hours)
Impacts of persuasive communication on attitudes and behavior. Uses humanistic and social scientific theories to explain the persuasive process.

Typically offered in Fall, Spring, and Summer

COM 202 Small Group Communication (3 credit hours)
Theory and practice of effective communication in small groups, including: stages of group development, role emergence, leadership functions, decision making strategies, conflict management, and the significance of power.

Typically offered in Fall and Spring

COM 211 Argumentation and Advocacy (3 credit hours)
Theory-based analysis of public argument in specialized settings of law, politics, academic debate, business and organizations, and interpersonal relations.

GEP Humanities
Typically offered in Fall and Spring

COM 226 Introduction to Public Relations (3 credit hours)
Public relations as a communication function of organizations. Public relations process, principles, history, and practice. Analysis of environmental, organizational, communication, and audience influences on public relations practice; career opportunities.

Typically offered in Fall and Spring

COM 230 Introduction to Communication Theory (3 credit hours)
Micro- and macro-analytic theories used in the study of human communication: perspectives and assumptions of major theories; utility and application of major theories; contexts, cultures, and media.

R: Communication Majors
Typically offered in Fall, Spring, and Summer

COM 240 Communication Inquiry (3 credit hours)
Qualitative and quantitative methods of inquiry in communication: types of questions; strategies for answering questions; nature of evidence; advantages and disadvantages of different methods; reference tolls in the field; and channels of distribution for research-based information.

Prerequisite: Communication Majors
Typically offered in Fall, Spring, and Summer

COM 250 Communication and Technology (3 credit hours)
Examination of past, current, and future intersections of technology, culture, and communication in everyday life. Impact of communication technology policies. Analysis of communication technologies in interpersonal, organizational, societal, and global contexts. Development of technology skills for the competent communicator.

Prerequisite: Communication Majors. Credit is not allowed for both COM 250 and COM 200
Typically offered in Fall, Spring, and Summer

COM 257 Media History and Theory (3 credit hours)
Historical development and social implications of telecommunications, print, photography, film, broadcasting, and computer-mediated communication. Theoretical and methodological approaches to the field of communication media: media history; media economics and policy; media effects and power; media as producers of meaning; media audiences; media technologies; and roles of the media in social, cultural, and political change.

Prerequisite: COM 230
Typically offered in Fall and Spring

COM 267 Electronic Media Writing: Theory and Practice (3 credit hours)
Media writing as a social practice. Roles of writing and writers in media production processes. Social, political, economic, and professional conditions that enable or constrain writing and the writer. Specific media writing genres and formats. Research and preparation for media writing. Students write research-based scripts for news, commentary, and fictional genres in radio, television, film, and emerging media.

Prerequisite: COM 230
Typically offered in Fall and Spring
COM 289 Science Communication and Public Engagement (3 credit hours)
This course is an introduction to the principles and practices of communicating scientific and technological issues to public audiences, through interpersonal discussion, mass media, social media, and other means. It is open to students in all majors who want to deepen and broaden their understanding of how citizens make sense of science and technology in their everyday lives. The course features a mixture of theory-based readings and discussion with practical skill-building for communication in real-world contexts. Equal emphasis is given to humanities and social science perspectives. The application of communication concepts to controversial science contexts is emphasized, including case studies of issues such as GMOs, climate change, vaccines, and gene editing. Theoretical perspectives covered include argumentation and debate; audience analysis (through quantitative survey data and metrics); philosophy and ethics of communicating science; using narratives, framing, and metaphors to communicate science; and the cultural image of science in popular media.

GEP Humanities, GEP Interdisciplinary Perspectives, GEP Social Sciences
Typically offered in Spring only

COM 292 Language, Communication, and Culture (3 credit hours)
We use different modes of communication depending on whether we are participating in classroom discussion, talking with our parents or boss, hanging out with our friends, or visiting a different country. However, rarely do we have the opportunity to consciously reflect upon our communicative behaviors. In this class we will unpack some of the ways culture and society influence our communication, as well as how our communication affects the culture and the society in which we live. Becoming aware of the effect that our words, shared meanings, and contexts have on how we express ourselves can be the difference between positive and negative communicative experiences.

GEP Social Sciences, GEP U.S. Diversity
Typically offered in Fall, Spring, and Summer

COM 296 Communication Internship-Non-Local (1 credit hour)
Non-local directed work experience for Communication majors with supervision from the work site and the University. COM 296 may be taken more than once only with the permission of the Internship Director and the Assoc. Dept. Head. Individualized/Independent Study and Research courses require a Course Agreement for Students Enrolled in Non-Standard Courses be completed by the student and faculty member prior to registration by the department.

R: Communication Majors
Typically offered in Fall, Spring, and Summer

COM 298 Special Projects in Communication (1-3 credit hours)
A special projects course to be utilized for guided research or experimental classes at the sophomore level, topic determined by instructor.

Typically offered in Fall and Spring

COM 301 Presentational Speaking (3 credit hours)
Design, organization and delivery of oral presentations for policy determination, policy implementation, and sales.

Prerequisite: COM 110
Typically offered in Spring only

COM 304 Audio Production (3 credit hours)
Basic principles of audio production, including studio operation, performing, writing, and producing.

P: COM 267
Typically offered in Spring only

COM 316 Public Relations Writing (3 credit hours)
Communication processes and procedures of public relations programs. Media techniques, preparation of materials, channels of distribution.

Prerequisite: COM 226
Typically offered in Fall and Spring

COM 321/ENG 321 Survey of Rhetorical Theory (3 credit hours)
Principles of rhetorical theory from its classical origins through the modern period to the present time. Key concepts and theories that provide a critical understanding of the processes of persuasive symbol use.

Prerequisite: Sophomore standing and above
Typically offered in Fall only

COM 322 Nonverbal Communication (3 credit hours)
Theory and research in nonverbal communication, including: environment; space; physical appearance, movement; eyes and facial expressions; and vocal cues. Nonverbal communication in personal, workplace and cross-cultural setting.

Prerequisite: COM 112
Typically offered in Fall only

COM 327 Critical Analysis of Communication Media (3 credit hours)
Theoretical frameworks, methods, and aims of various approaches to critical analysis of the media. Critiques of media production and its relation to social, economic, and technological power; social biases of informational, fictional, and hybrid media content; and historical forms of audiences and the public. Critical awareness of media’s role in politics, public culture, and everyday life.

P: COM 257
Typically offered in Fall and Spring

COM 331 Relational Communication (3 credit hours)
Communication patterns in the development and deterioration of interpersonal relationships. Functional and dysfunctional communication behaviors in family relationships.

Prerequisite: COM 112
Typically offered in Fall and Spring

COM 332 Video Production (3 credit hours)
Principles of producing, directing, and editing techniques for video. Students script, storyboard, shoot, and edit short video projects.

P: COM 267 or ENG 330
Typically offered in Fall and Spring
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Course Code</th>
<th>Course Title</th>
<th>Credits</th>
<th>Description</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>COM 336</td>
<td>Newsletter Writing and Production</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>Newsletters are an important part of the corporate, non-profit, government, and small business portfolio of communication tools. Just about all organizations use newsletters - print or electronic - to reach their audiences with their key messages. Many young public relations practitioners start their careers working on newsletters for their organization or their clients. Students in this course will work collaboratively to write and produce a newsletter as well as other public relations publications.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>COM 342</td>
<td>Qualitative Research Methods in Communication</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>Introduction to qualitative methods in communication research. Research paradigms, research ethics, research design, qualitative data collection, data analysis and interpretation, written and multimedia reporting of research results. Students are responsible for providing their own transportation to research sites for fieldwork.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>COM 346</td>
<td>Case Studies in Public Relations</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>Application of theory, principles, and problem-solving techniques used in public relations to organizational case studies.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>COM 354</td>
<td>Critical Media Making</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>Production lab and seminar combined. Critical making of visual images, audio, and video for the web and other electronic platforms informed by theories of visual communication and digital culture. Critical analysis of the assumptions underlying the development and deployment of media, and their social, economic, and political impact. Development of practical skills and critical thinking.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>COM 362/WGS 362</td>
<td>Communication and Gender</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>Effects of gender on the interpersonal communication process. Construction of gendered identities via communication practices. Examination of theories of gender and the role of gender in organizational, institutional, and media communication practices.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>COM 384</td>
<td>History of Film From 1940</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>Technological developments and aesthetic movements that have shaped international cinema production from 1940 to the present. Evolution in camera movement, editing, sound, narrative form, and the documentary. Post-war Hollywood cinema and international film industries (both established and emerging) in historical, economic and cultural context.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>COM 395/ENG 395</td>
<td>Studies in Rhetoric and Digital Media</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>Study of the influence of emerging technologies on rhetorical theory and practice. Rhetorical analysis of texts, including visual and audio texts. Invention and construction of digital media texts as a means of engaging rhetorical theory and analysis. Topics vary to adapt to emerging technologies and changing vernacular practices.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>COM 402</td>
<td>Advanced Group Communication</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>Communication processes and outcomes in groups with complex, strategic, and critical public or corporate functions. Focus on participating in, intervening in, leading, and constructing group processes. Advanced theory with application.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>COM 404</td>
<td>Advanced Audio Production</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>Advanced multichannel techniques for audio production. Studio acoustics, audio signal processing, and advanced microphone techniques, writing, and performing.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
COM 411/ENG 411 Rhetorical Criticism  (3 credit hours)
Rhetorical analysis of public speeches, social movements, political campaigns, popular music, advertising, and religious communication. Neo-Aristotelian criticism, movement studies, genre criticism, dramatistic analysis, content analysis, fantasy theme analysis.
Prerequisite: Junior standing

COM 417 Communication & Race  (3 credit hours)
Seminar examining the construction of racial and ethnic identities through communication practices. Exploration of theories of race and identity and the ways communication works to construct, undermine, and reinforce understanding across social groups.

GEP U.S. Diversity
Typically offered in Fall and Spring

COM 421 Communication Law  (3 credit hours)
Exposes the historical, philosophical, and legal foundations of communication rights and responsibilities. Philosophies and regulations affecting sources, messages, channels, receivers, and situations provide the central focus of the course.
Prerequisite: Junior standing.
Typically offered in Fall only

COM 427 Game Studies  (3 credit hours)
Exploration of the social and cultural significance of digital games. Overview of major approaches and theories used in studies of digital play. Histories and current conditions of digital games platforms, practices, and industries across multiple cultural contexts. Contemporary applications of games in and across multiple domains, including education, art, sports, and work.
P: STS 214 or COM 257 or COM 250 or COM 200
Typically offered in Fall and Spring

COM 431 Communication in Political Campaigns  (3 credit hours)
Roles of analysis and criticism of oral communication in political campaigns; analysis of special political communication situations; ghostwriting, news conferences, negative advertising.
Prerequisite: COM 110 or COM 201
Typically offered in Fall only

COM 434 Advanced Video Production  (3 credit hours)
Hands-on experience in video production. Production of informational videos. Practical experience in all phases of the production process, including pre-production organization and critical analysis of the final product.
P: COM 334
Typically offered in Spring only

COM 436 Environmental Communication  (3 credit hours)
Critical analysis of environmental discourse in organizational, mass media, political, cultural, and international contexts. Investigates public participation in environmental advocacy and deliberation; environmental conflict management; rhetorical constructions of nature and human relationships with nature; environmental justice; environmental risk communication; and competing ecological paradigms.
Prerequisite: COM 230 or STS 214
Typically offered in Fall only

COM 441 Ethical Issues in Communication  (3 credit hours)
Critical analysis of ethical problems in interpersonal and public communication practices.
Prerequisite: COM 110, 112
Typically offered in Fall and Spring

COM 442 Communication and Conflict Management  (3 credit hours)
Examination of conflict styles and theories; conflict management strategies such as negotiation and third party intervention; and relevant contexts for conflict such as workplace, families, and interpersonal relationships. Practical, theoretical and critical analyses of conflict and negotiation in variety of contexts.
Prerequisite: COM 112
Typically offered in Fall only

COM 444 Film Production  (3 credit hours)
Prerequisite: COM 267 or ENG 330
Typically offered in Fall and Spring

COM 447 Communication and Globalization  (3 credit hours)
History and current trends in globalization of media, information, and telecommunications technologies, organizations, policies, and contents. Political cultural implications of globalization, including debates over corporate vs. public control of global communication, U.S. dominance vs. international cooperation, and the global influence of American culture. Internet-based group research projects on globalization in collaboration with students in other countries.
P: STS 214 or COM 257 or COM 250 or COM 200
GEP Global Knowledge
Typically offered in Summer only

COM 451 Visual Rhetoric  (3 credit hours)
Examine the rhetorical strategies employed in various primarily visual forms of communication including advertising, photography, digital images, visual art, and public commemorative artifacts and sites. Explore the concepts and methods used to rhetorically analyze and interpret visual images and artifacts. Includes one or more required field trips to which students will provide own transportation.
Prerequisite: COM 201 or COM 321
Typically offered in Spring only

COM 456 Organizational Communication  (3 credit hours)
Role of human communication in organizations, the assumptions inherent in management philosophies about effective communication, and an investigation of the relationships among communication, job satisfaction, productivity, development, and employee motivation.
Prerequisite: COM 230
Typically offered in Fall and Spring
COM 457 Media and the Family (3 credit hours)
Impact of mediated messages upon children and the family unit. Origins of the empirical literature and continuing research. Assessment of the qualitative literature. Implications of commercial structure of the media industries on the structure and distribution of media messages designed for children and families. Consideration of both pro- and anti-social impacts.
P: STS 214 or COM 257 or COM 250 or COM 200
Typically offered in Fall only

COM 466 Nonprofit Leadership & Development (3 credit hours)
Nonprofit Leadership and Development is a service-learning course in which students will be expected to make a commitment to service in a local nonprofit organization for 30-hours. Students will critically examine theories of communication and leadership with concentration on issues pertaining to nonprofits such as working with executive boards, volunteer management, and resource development. Students are responsible for transportation and purchase of internship insurance.
Typically offered in Fall and Spring

COM 467 Advanced Topics in Gender and Communication (3 credit hours)
Advanced Topics seminar examining construction of gender identities through communication practices. History and analysis of gender representations. Theoretical and critical approaches to social, political, and economic impact of gender constructions.
P: COM 362 or STS 210 or COM 257 or COM 250 or COM 200
Typically offered in Fall and Spring

COM 476 Public Relations Campaigns (3 credit hours)
Management of the public relations function in organizations and public relations counseling; communication theory and nature of materials emanating from public relations departments and counseling firms, practical analysis and development of public relations publicity and campaigns.
Prerequisite: COM 226, COM 316, COM 386 and Corequisite: COM 346
(Note: COM 346 may be taken as a prerequisite or co-requisite)
Typically offered in Fall and Spring

COM 477 Mobile Communication (3 credit hours)
Mobile communication technologies and their role in communication patterns and social behavior. Conceptualization of cell phones beyond mobile telephones, as internet access points and gaming devices. History, current uses, and future perspectives for the social, cultural, and political uses of mobile interfaces. Locative media and the creation of mobile networks. Use of mobile media across cultures and places, such as Asia, Africa, and Latin America.
P: STS 214 or COM 257 or COM 250 or COM 200
Typically offered in Fall and Spring

COM 479/COM 579 Climate Change Communication (3 credit hours)
An exploration of the communication successes and failures surrounding climate change and public opinion. Topics addressed include: agenda setting, media effects, framing, data visualizations, fear responses, naming, risk communication and theory, argumentation and refutation, and persuasion as well as issues and current events related to the challenges associated with communicating climate change to multiple stakeholders.
Typically offered in Fall only

COM 484 Advanced Television Production (3 credit hours)
Television program production utilizing advanced production techniques. Emphasis on refinement of writing, producing, and directing skills through work in TV studio on production of sophisticated program formats.
P: COM 384
Typically offered in Fall only

COM 487 Internet and Society (3 credit hours)
Social uses and historic overview of the internet as a social network. History of the internet from the ARPANET to the mobile web. The development of interfaces that changed how we access the internet, such as personal computers, the graphic user interface (GUI), mobile phones, and Internet of Things. MUDs and synchronous communication environments as the origins of social media. The development of the www and web 2.0 and the transformation of users into "producers". Social issues related to the internet, such as net neutrality, privacy, surveillance, big data, artificial intelligence, and the digital divide.
P: STS 214 or COM 257 or COM 250 or COM 200
Typically offered in Fall and Spring

COM 493 Advanced Topics in Public Relations (3 credit hours)
This course addresses current trends and recent development in the public relations profession through extensive analysis of industry practices. Course content will change each semester subject to faculty availability, but may include topics such as social media, media relations, crisis communication, international public relations, and other public relations specializations. Juniors and Seniors only.
Typically offered in Fall and Spring

COM 496 Communication Internship (3 credit hours)
Directed work experience for Communication majors with supervision from the work site and the University. Individualized/Independent Study and Research courses require a Course Agreement for Students Enrolled in Non-Standard Courses be completed by the student and faculty member prior to registration by the department.
R: Senior standing AND Communication Majors AND 12 hours in COM at 300/400-level
Typically offered in Fall, Spring, and Summer

COM 497 Advanced Topics in Media Studies (3 credit hours)
This course examines special topics in media studies through intensive study of media history, theory, research, methods and/or practice. Course content will change each semester depending on faculty areas of expertise.
Prerequisite: COM 250 or COM 257 or COM 357
Typically offered in Fall and Spring

COM 498 Advanced Topic in Communication (1-3 credit hours)
Advanced study of contemporary theories, methods, practices, processes, or issues related to the field of communication. Topic varies.
Prerequisite: Junior or senior standing
Typically offered in Fall and Spring
COM 499 Advanced Independent Research (1-3 credit hours)
Special projects in communication developed under the direction of a faculty member on a tutorial basis. Must have permission of department to enroll. May enroll only twice. Individualized/Independent Study and Research courses require a Course Agreement for Students Enrolled in Non-Standard Courses be completed by the student and faculty member prior to registration by the department.

Prerequisite: Nine credits in Communication courses. Junior standing or Senior standing in Communication
Typically offered in Fall and Spring

COM 506/ENG 506 Verbal Data Analysis (3 credit hours)
Research strategies for understanding how spoken and written language shapes activities (e.g., design, instruction, counseling, gaming interactions, e-commerce, etc.). Tracking patterned uses of language as verbal data (e.g., grammatically topically, thematically), formulating research questions, and designing studies to answer those questions through quantitative descriptive means. Sampling, collecting and managing data, developing coding schemes, achieving reliability, using descriptive statistical measures, and reporting the results.

Typically offered in Fall only

COM 508/GES 508 Emerging Technologies and Society (3 credit hours)
Provides frameworks for understanding emerging technologies and their social, political, and cultural contexts. Presents historical case studies, ethnographic accounts, and theoretical perspectives that introduce students to ways of thinking about science and technology, nature and culture, and democracy and expertise. Graduate standing is required.

Typically offered in Spring only

COM 514/ENG 514 History Of Rhetoric (3 credit hours)
Historical development of rhetorical theory with attention to contemporaneous rhetorical practice and philosophical trends. Major focus on the classical period with briefer coverage of medieval, Renaissance, 18th-century, and 19th-century developments. Implications for contemporary theory and practice, including pedagogical practice.

Typically offered in Fall only

COM 516/ENG 516 Rhetorical Criticism: Theory and Practice (3 credit hours)
Development, achievements, limitation of major critical methods in the 20th century, including neo-Aristotelian, generic, metaphorical, dramatistic, feminist, social-movement, fantasy-theme and postmodern approaches. Criticism of political discourse, institutional discourse, discourses of law, medicine, religion, education, science, the media. Relations between rhetorical and literary criticism and other forms of cultural analysis.

Prerequisite: Graduate Standing or the equivalent of COM/ENG 321 or COM/ENG 411
Typically offered in Spring only

COM 521 Communication and Globalization (3 credit hours)
Economic, political, cultural dimensions of globalization. Role of information and communication technologies, networks, institutions, and practices in human social organization.

Prerequisite: Graduate standing
Typically offered in Summer only

COM 522 Critical Approaches to Organizational Communication (3 credit hours)
Overview of critical and interpretive organizational communication research studies. Application of insights to enriching and transforming working lives.

Prerequisite: Graduate standing
Typically offered in Spring only

COM 523 International and Intercultural Communication (3 credit hours)
Survey of intercultural, cross-cultural, and international communication theories and issues.

Prerequisite: Graduate standing
Typically offered in Spring only

COM 525 Group/Team Communication (3 credit hours)
Comprehensive review of principles, theory, research, and practices involving group/team communication; associated with decision making, conflict management, relationship building, and evaluation of group/team effectiveness. Emphasis on guidelines for effective communication in groups and teams. Graduate standing required.

Prerequisite: Graduate standing
Typically offered in Spring only

COM 529 Group/Team Communication (3 credit hours)
Comprehensive review of principles, theory, research, and practices involving group/team communication; associated with decision making, conflict management, relationship building, and evaluation of group/team effectiveness. Emphasis on guidelines for effective communication in groups and teams. Graduate standing required.

Prerequisite: Graduate standing
Typically offered in Spring only

COM 526 Media Economics (3 credit hours)
This course provides an overview of economic perspectives on media and communication, particularly examining cases, topics, and controversies that stem from the many linkages between media and the economy. It reviews a range of perspectives on the economy of media, including the critical political economic approaches commonly employed in the field of communication, but also emerging neoclassical, behavioral, institutional, and heterodox approaches to economics, as applied to a range of possible topics. These may include: media ownership and the economics of journalism; labor and social media; data and surveillance economies; copyright and intellectual property; piracy, sharing, and collaboration; digital gift economies; social media celebrity and influencers; bitcoin and other virtual currencies; debt, credit, and algorithmic calculation; microfinance apps; “on-demand” platforms such as Uber and Lyft; automation and the future of employment; global supply chains in the manufacture of technology; the disposal of waste; consumerism and unsustainable energy use.

Prerequisite: Graduate standing
Typically offered in Spring only

COM 527 Seminar in Organizational Conflict Management (3 credit hours)
Examination of conflict antecedents, interventions, outcomes through multiple texts, journal articles. Emphasis on workplace conflict, organizational outcomes, dispute system design. Evaluation through participation in class discussion, independent papers, research project, presentation.

Prerequisite: Graduate standing
Typically offered in Summer only

COM 528 Communication Culture and Technology (3 credit hours)

Prerequisite: Graduate standing
Typically offered in Spring only
COM 529 Communication Campaigns (3 credit hours)
Prepares students to design, implement, monitor, and evaluate a successful communication campaign for a health, public relations, or political organization that is grounded in sound theoretical approaches. The students conduct focus groups for audience research and professionally present a campaign plan to a real client for any of the mentioned types of organizations. The course emphasizes theoretical and hands on practical skills to developing successful communication campaigns.

Typically offered in Spring only

COM 530 Interpersonal Communication in Science and Technology Organizations (3 credit hours)
Blends theory and research to understand and analyze interpersonal communication practices and issues within organizations, including managing impressions and conversations, managing conflict, influencing others, and communicating in teams. Focus on developing and maintaining effective interpersonal at work and improving student's communication competence.

Prerequisite: Graduate standing
Typically offered in Summer only

COM 532 Communication Consulting (3 credit hours)
This course provides an introduction to the art and methods of consulting particularly as applied to communication problems in organizational settings. It also provides students the opportunity to develop and/or refine training and facilitation skills and to link communication theory and research to organizational practice. Graduate standing required.

Typically offered in Fall only

COM 536 Seminar in Environmental Communication (3 credit hours)
Critical analysis of environmental discourse in organizational, mass media, political, cultural, and international contexts. Investigates public participation in environmental advocacy and deliberation; environmental conflict management; rhetorical constructions of nature and human relationships with nature; environmental justice; environmental risk communication; and competing ecological paradigms. Must hold graduate standing.

P: Graduate Standing
Typically offered in Spring only

COM 537 Gaming and Social Networks (3 credit hours)
Exploration of inter-relations among mobile technologies (cell phones, PDAs), location-based activities, and playful/social spaces. Investigates: (1) the definition of basic gaming concepts (community, narrative, play, and space); (2) the history of games as social environments, with particular emphasis on multi-user domains (MUDs); and (3) the definition of games, which use the physical space as the game environment, such as pervasive games, location-based games, and hybrid reality games. Discussion of inter-connections among games, education, and art. By permission of department.

COM 538 Risk Communication (3 credit hours)
Comprehensive review of principles, theory, research, and practices involving consensus building; associated with environmental, health and safety; enabling analysis and management of risks. Emphasis on risks associated with emerging science and technology. No quantitative experience necessary. Graduate standing required.

Typically offered in Fall only

COM 539/PA 539 Fund Development (3 credit hours)
Identifies and assesses techniques and best practices of fund development, annual giving, capital campaigns, endowments. Topics include setting achievable goals, organizing and staffing a fund development campaign, and identifying donors. Discusses links between fund development and organization mission and governance, ethical issues, and government regulations. PBS status or Graduate standing.

Typically offered in Fall only

COM 540 Critical and Interpretive Inquiry in Communication (3 credit hours)
Theoretical foundations and analytical techniques in critical and interpretive communication research. Analysis of culture and power in communicative practices, texts, technologies, production, and reception. Historical, political economic, archival, contextual, interpretive, rhetorical, and cultural modes of analysis and critique are highlighted. Graduate standing required.

Typically offered in Fall only

COM 541 Quantitative Research Methods in Applied Communication (3 credit hours)
Introduction to research methods in applied communication. Knowledge of design, implementation, and analysis of various quantitative research methods.

Prerequisite: Graduate standing
Typically offered in Spring only

COM 542 Qualitative Research Methods in Applied Communication (3 credit hours)
Theoretical and practical dimensions of conducting qualitative research. Issues include asking good questions, field observation, ethics, focus groups, interviews, representation of data, analyzing texts and discourse, writing qualitative reports.

Prerequisite: Graduate standing
Typically offered in Spring only

COM 543 Visual Content Analysis (3 credit hours)
Research methods class in social science-orientated quantitative or qualitative analysis. Students will advance visual research by developing and/or testing theoretical concepts for visual media. Readings will focus on analytic techniques and concepts for still or moving images in digital or traditional media. Contexts include social media, organizational websites, blogs, online news sites, films, games, mobile media, and more. Students use qualitative and quantitative analysis software. Graduate standing required.

Typically offered in Fall only

COM 544 Nonprofit Marketing and Public Relations (3 credit hours)
Survey of the marketing and public relations principles and practices applicable to nonprofit organizations.

COM 545 Mobile Media and Communication (3 credit hours)
Mobile communication technologies and their influence on communication patterns and social behavior. Conceptualization of cell phones beyond mobile telephones, as Internet access points and gaming devices. History, current uses and future perspectives for the social use of mobile interfaces. The creation of new mobile communities. The influence of mobile images on communication and the creation of mobile networks. Use of mobile phones across cultures and places, such as Asia, Scandinavia, Africa, and Latin America. Permission of department.
COM 554/ENG 554 Contemporary Rhetorical Theory (3 credit hours)
Contemporary rhetorical theory covering the 20th and 21st centuries. Conceptual connections with and disruptions of the classical tradition and its, successors; relationship between rhetorical theory and philosophical trends, institutional histories, socioeconomic circumstances, and pedagogical needs. Attention to current issues such as the revival of invention, rhetorical agency, and ethics.

Typically offered in Spring only

COM 556 Seminar In Organizational Communication (3 credit hours)
Theoretic and applied approaches for studying communication perspectives of organizational behavior. Topics relate communication with organizational theories, research methods, leadership, power, attraction, conflict and theory development.

Prerequisite: Advanced Undergraduate standing or Graduate standing
Typically offered in Spring only

COM 561 Human Communication Theory (3 credit hours)
The role of theory in study of human communication. General social scientific theories as well as context-based theories including interpersonal, public, group, organizational and mass communication contexts.

Prerequisite: Graduate standing or PBS status
Typically offered in Fall only

COM 562 Communication and Social Change (3 credit hours)
Examine persuasive theories and methods including compliance gaining techniques. Evaluate effectiveness of public communication campaigns directed at social change.

Prerequisite: Graduate standing
Typically offered in Fall only

COM 563 Public Relations Theory (3 credit hours)
Study the theoretical body of knowledge in public relations and its application to practice. Graduate Standing required.

Typically offered in Spring only

COM 566 Seminar In Crisis Communication (3 credit hours)
Working within theoretical perspectives of communication, conflict management and organizational designs, a theoretical understanding for crisis communication, including thorough guidelines for strategic communication planning for, managing and evaluating crises.

Typically offered in Spring only

COM 579/COM 479 Climate Change Communication (3 credit hours)
An exploration of the communication successes and failures surrounding climate change and public opinion. Topics addressed include: agenda setting, media effects, framing, data visualizations, fear responses, naming, risk communication and theory, argumentation and refutation, and persuasion as well as issues and current events related to the challenges associated with communicating climate change to multiple stakeholders.

Typically offered in Fall only

COM 581/ENG 581 Visual Rhetoric: Theory and Criticism (3 credit hours)
Application of visual theory to rhetoric and of rhetorical theory to visual forms of communication. Discussion and analysis may include advertising, photography, news and informational media, political communication, instructional material, scientific visualization, visual arts, public commemorative artifacts, internet and other digital media.

R: Graduate Students Only
Typically offered in Spring only

COM 585 Teaching College Communication (3 credit hours)
Introduction to communication education theory and research. Course divided into primary parts: 1) education theory and philosophy and 2) instructional design theory and practice.

Prerequisite: Graduate standing

Typically offered in Fall only

COM 587 Internet & Society (3 credit hours)
Overview of the development of the internet and its social uses, including the historical context that led to the development of the ARPANET and the World Wide Web. Analysis of the transition from mainframes to personal computers, to the Internet of Things. Treatment of principal social and communication issues related to the use of the internet, such as digital privacy, digital divide, net neutrality, and civic engagement. Development of mobile internet, social networking sites and location-based social networks.

Typically offered in Fall only

COM 598 Special Topics In Communication (1-6 credit hours)
Detailed investigation of a special topic in communication. No more than 6 hrs. may be used as credit toward graduation with master's degree.

Typically offered in Fall, Spring, and Summer

COM 630 Independent Study in Communication (1-3 credit hours)
Special projects course to be utilized for guided research at graduate level. Topic determined by instructor. No more than 6 hrs. may be used as credit toward graduation with master's degree.

Prerequisite: Graduate standing

Typically offered in Fall, Spring, and Summer

COM 650 Communication Internship (1-6 credit hours)
The internship experience provides the students the opportunity to practice professional communication skills in a workplace setting under the supervision of a communication practitioner. Restricted to MS in Communication students.

Prerequisite: Acceptance into MS in Communication Program
Typically offered in Fall, Spring, and Summer

COM 685 Master's Supervised Teaching (1-3 credit hours)
Teaching experience under the mentorship of faculty who assist the student in planning for the teaching assignment, observe and provide feedback to the student during the teaching assignment, and evaluate the student upon completion of the assignment.

Prerequisite: Master's student
Typically offered in Fall and Summer
COM 688  Non-Thesis Masters Continuous Registration - Half Time Registration  (1 credit hours)
For students in non-thesis master's programs who have completed all credit hour requirements for their degree but need to maintain half-time continuous registration to complete incomplete grades, projects, final master's exam, etc.

Prerequisite: Master's student
Typically offered in Fall and Spring

COM 689  Non-Thesis Master Continuous Registration - Full Time Registration  (3 credit hours)
For students in non-thesis master's programs who have completed all credit hour requirements for their degree but need to maintain full-time continuous registration to complete incomplete grades, projects, final master's exam, etc. Students may register for this course a maximum of one semester.

Prerequisite: Master's student
Typically offered in Fall and Spring

COM 695  MR Thesis Research  (1-9 credit hours)
Thesis Research

Prerequisite: Master's student
Typically offered in Fall, Spring, and Summer

COM 696  Summer Thesis Res  (1 credit hours)
Typically offered in Summer only

COM 798  Special Topics in Communication  (3-6 credit hours)
Intensive exploration of specialized or emerging topics in an area of communication theory, rhetoric, media, or other aspect of Communication studies. Emphasis on student research and writing. May be used to test and develop new courses. May be repeated for credit. Doctoral students only.

Typically offered in Fall and Spring

COM 810  Directed Readings in Communication  (1-6 credit hours)
Intensive study of a specific topic from various specializations of the Communication faculty. Negotiation between the student and the director for variable credit and approved by Director of Graduate Studies. May be repeated for credit. Doctoral students only.

Typically offered in Fall, Spring, and Summer

COM 896  Summer Dissert Res  (1 credit hours)