

History (BA): Legal History Concentration

The BA in History is a strong pathway of undergraduate education leading to law school. History majors have a strong record of successful admission to law school. Within the major, the Legal History concentration provides a specialized focus embedded within the major's strengths in analysis of texts, critical thinking, factual analysis, and historical perspective. The concentration in Legal History includes the analysis of the historical context of developments in law and legal practice, analysis of the historical causes and consequences of major legal cases, and historical interpretation of the nature of the legal system in diverse society and historical moments. The concentration offers students a choice of mid-level and advanced History courses treating the political, economic, and sociocultural history of legal systems.
